

Title of dissertation: Analysis of individual gaming activities in ice hockey

Objectives of dissertation: The evaluation of the utilization of HC Slavia Prague individual players in hockey play-off matches. The analysis of HC Slavia Prague's detailed statistics of individual player the activities of the individual player's game utilization.

Method: The research was carried out indirectly by observing selected video recordings of the Czech Extraliga play-offs. Specifically, it is a qualitative and quantitative analysis of the utilization of selected HC Slavia Prague players.

Results: The results of the analysis of individual player's game utilization imply that players of the first formation spend more time on the ice, especially in tied matches, than players of the third or fourth formations. From the qualitative point of view there is also a noticeable difference between the observed players.

Key words: ice hockey, skating, individual offensive game activities, individual defensive game activities, face-off, sport performance, sport training.